

N ot because he wanted to argue, but because his heart refused to pretend it understood what it did not. For a long time, people misunderstood him. Some thought he asked too many questions. Others thought he had lost his way.

Khalid paused. Then smiled again.

“But Allah never became angry with his questions.”

“In fact... Allah guided him because he sincerely searched for the truth.” He looked gently at Zayd.

“Do you know who that man was?”

Zayd slowly shook his head.

Khalid’s eyes softened. “It was Prophet Ibrahim, peace be upon him.”

“The very man who spent his life asking questions...

became the man Allah honoured with building the Kaabah.”