

His younger siblings clapped
when they heard about the two As.

For the first time in a long while...
Zayd felt light.

Later that night, after everyone had gone to bed, Khalid gently knocked on Zayd's bedroom door.

"Come with me," he whispered.

Zayd quietly followed his father into the cool night air and took a walk into the bustling city surrounding them.

Neither of them knew that the conversation waiting beneath the stars...
would stay with him for the rest of his life.